Teen girl dies after vehicle slams into tree

Friend's account. Boy who came to the scene says victim drove him home. He was the last to see her alive

IFSSICA BEDDAOUI

A teenaged girl was killed early Sunday morning when her car hit a tree near Dunrobin and Opeongo roads.

A passerby found the car at about 9:30 a.m. and called 911, but police don't know when the crash occurred, officers said.

The 17-year-old was dead when police arrived.

Fifteen year-old Daniel Gaudreau came to the scene of the collision at about 2 p.m. and told reporters he was a friend of the victim and the last person to see her alive.

His mother, Diane Gau-dreau, said her son and his friend were dropped off at the family home at about 5 a.m. after spending the night at a party with the victim.

Gaudreau said she was told the party was for the girl's father's 50th birthday. "So that's very sad," she said.

Police said the girl was wearing her seatbelt. She was not ejected from her car, which travelled across a ditch before hitting the tree.

Police lay gun charges against alleged john

Ottawa police arrested a man who was allegedly carrying a loaded handgun when he was caught in a prostitution sweep on Friday night.

Officers with the Ottawa police Central Neighborhood division arrested a john at about 9 p.m. at Montreal Road and Olmstead Street and found he had a loaded 9 mm calibre Springfield Arms handgun, police said.

Normand Corminboeuf, 41, faces a string of gunrelated charges and was in custody pending a court appearance.

POWER, an Ottawa-area sex-worker human and labour rights organization, has been speaking out against similar sweeps that target johns, saying that police tactic endangers their workers.

"It's very concerning that (a john) was (allegedly) soliciting with a handgun," said Emily Symons, member of POWER. "I think that the overall majority of people (soliciting) are good people. He was just a bad apple."

POWER has been urging co-operation with police, especially since former Ottawa Police Service chief Vern White announced last December that major-crime investigators identified a pattern with homicides involving six sex-trade workers who have been murdered over the past 21 years.

Police have not suggested this alleged john had any connection to the

Hip-hop festival. Maestro Fresh Wes, Kid Koala, Shad among those scheduled to perform at House of PainT

Big names in Canadian hip hop including Maestro Fresh Wes and Kid Koala are booked to perform under the Dunbar Bridge at the ninth annual House of PainT festival on Aug. 16.

Organizers will sell tickets to the concert portion of the four-day hip-hop festival for the first time, said spokesman Rob Reid.

"We decided to move forward, professionalize the operation," he said.

This year's theme is "building," he said. "We're building towards the 10th anniversary, we're building toward a sustainable community for artists, and building on the success of the past years."

The concert with Shad, Maestro Fresh Wes, Masia One, Kid Koala, Flight Distance, Devin Atherton and more will be held under the Dunbar Bridge on Sunday.

Maestro Fresh Wes, of Let Your Backbone Slide fame, will also do a brief performance on Saturday, also under the bridge, at the free House of PainT Main Event. The main event features a b-boy battle, MC showcases and graffiti artists.

Kid Koala will also hold a "DJ turntablism masterclass" on Sunday, said Reid.

Tickets for Sunday's concert will cost $25 and go on sale Aug. 1 at houseofpaint.ca and at stores around town.

Israel. Romney supports Jerusalem as capital

U.S. presidential candidate Mitt Romney spoke aggressively Sunday about protecting Israel from Iranian nuclear threats and suggested that he was open to breaking with U.S. policy dating to 1967 by moving the United States embassy to Jerusalem if the Israelis asked.

Israel is the second of three stops on an international trip for Romney intended to burnish his foreign policy credentials.

Romney's speech was aimed at appealing to evangelical voters at home and to cut into Obama's support among American Jews. A Gallup survey of Jewish voters released Friday showed Obama with a 68-25 edge over Romney.

While Romney has been highly critical of President Barack Obama's policy toward Iran and the presumed threat to Israel, he has offered no specifics about how his policy would be substantially different.

But on the issue of the location of the U.S. embassy in Israel, which is in Tel Aviv, Romey told CNN that he thought the U.S. embassy should be moved from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem if the Israelis make that request. The Israelis have repeatedly sought such a move.

The issue has been a major diplomatic headache for the U.S., which has refused to make the shift because it would imply the sanctioning of Israel's incorporation of Arab East Jerusalem. The U.S. has refused to locate its embassy in Jerusalem out of its effort to be a trusted voice by both sides of the conflict.

Romney flatly called Jerusalem the Israeli capital in the very first words of his speech Sunday. And he had harsh words yet again for Iran, saying he respected Israel's right to defend itself against what Israel considers an existential threat.

"We will not look away nor will our country ever look away from our passion and commitment to Israel," said Romney.

The head of the main opposition group, the Syrian National Council, called for international help in arming the rebels to face the regime's heavy weaponry, particularly tanks.

"If the international community cannot act, they should support the opposition with anti-tanks missiles and anti-aircraft rockets," Abdel Basset Sida told the Gulf News during a stopover in Abu Dhabi. "We seek international supporters to arm our upris-

Saudi Arabia and Qatar have expressed willingness to help fund the rebels and they are believed to be funneling money through Turkey to the opposition, which is using it to purchase arms and equipment.

Syrian Foreign Minister Walid al-Moallem railed against interference by the region's Sunni powers. He accused them of supporting the rebels at the behest of Israel.

Bombings and shooting in Iraq kill 7

Two bombings and a drive-by shooting Sunday killed seven Iraqi police in a former al-Qaida stronghold in the western part of the country, authorities said, another sign of the militants' resurgence.

The attacks before dawn around the city of Fallujah also wounded nine police. They come a week after the leader of al-Qaida in Iraq announced a deadly campaign to reclaim parts of the country the Sunni insurgency was forced to leave before the U.S. military pulled out last December.

After the attacks Sunday, security forces sealed off all roads leading into Fallujah and imposed a curfew on the city, 65 kilometres west of Baehdad.

Officials said two explosivespacked cars blew up within a few minutes of each other in Fallujah and the nearby village of Karma as security patrols drove by, killing three policemen. Fifteen minutes later, a gang of gunmen fired on a Karma police station, killing four. The gunmen escaped.

The casualties were confirmed by local hospital officials. All spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to release the information to reporters.

Al-Qaida in Iraq is seeking to make a comeback in Anbar and other Sunni areas, launching dozens of deadly attacks in the days since last weekend's statement by Islamic State of Iraq leader Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi that the militant group would push back into its former strongholds. YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION DESERVES BETTER CARE

Information is power, and with that power should come some Governments, businesses and other institutions compile ever more personal data, strictly, as you know, to serve you better. But too often they come up short on their responsibility to protect that information from loss and theft.

The damage control routine after every such screw-up is by now as familiar as it is unsatisfactory. It boils down to: "Whoops, we lost your data. We're still looking into what happened, but you should keep an eye out for identity theft, and, uh, good luck."

Most recently, 800 retired city employees learned that a hard drive containing personal information (their names, birthdates, SINs, pension amounts) had apparently been stolen from U.S. actuary Towers Watson.

For the added convenience of whoever now possesses the missing data, none of it was encrypted. The company has some explaining to do in this mess, but so does the city.

Last year, I got a call from my bank advising that I was among customers affected by the loss of (once again unencrypted) data stored on CDs that subsequently disappeared somewhere in their internal mail system.

The info? Oh, the usual, names, mailing addresses, SINs, account types and numbers. They couldn't find the discs, which had been missing for more than a month by the time they got around to informing me.

While advising I keep a close watch on my statements for anything unusual, they insisted they had no reason to believe the lost info was in the hands of anyone 'unauthorized.' The source of such confidence remains a mystery to me

Early this month, it was Elections Ontario who advised they had lost track of a couple of USB keys containing info (name, address, date of birth, gender) of up to 2.4 million voters in last fall's election.

The agency issued an apology and the customary warning to be on the lookout for identity theft and other fraudulent use of your personal information, because who knows where it is now? Certainly not Elections Ontario.

They also pointed out, by way of reassurance, that the missing data included no social insurance numbers, health card or driver's license information, phone numbers, email addresses, credit card or banking information, which makes sense because they didn't collect that data from voters.

So, credit where credit's due, and full marks for a great job not losing data with which they were never entrusted in the

After a record-low voter turnout, the last thing the remaining 49.2 per cent of Ontarians who bothered to vote needed was another disincentive to do so. And, as the province's information and privacy commissioner Ann Cavoukian pointed out, the whole debacle could easily have been prevented.

Personal information is the currency in which Elections Ontario trades," she said as she announced an investigation into the incident. "It is my expectation that personally-identifiable information will not be stored on USB keys, laptops or other mobile devices — full stop. That is the message I have repeatedly given over the years. If it is absolutely necessary to transfer personal information to a mobile device, it should first be de-identified or protected with strong encryption."

It seems to be pretty elementary advice, and if anyone at Elections Ontario, the city of Ottawa or your bank still needs to be told this in 2012, perhaps they should also be reminded to lock the door when they leave the office for the day and not to forget their car keys in the ignition.

Cavoukian has long warned that privacy laws are falling behind technological reality and that governments must push businesses to make security and consent the first priorities when dealing with customers' personal information (presumably after they get their own act together in this area).

Accidents will happen, but they're considerably more likely when you gather huge quantities of sensitive informa-tion and fail to take basic precautions with it.

An Arnold-free Total Recall

New movie. The director discusses updating the Schwarzenegger hit — and reteaming with wife Kate Beckinsale.

NED EHRBAR

Director Len Wiseman has been working for quite some time on a remake of the 1990 Arnold Schwarzenegger vehicle Total Recall, based on a short story by Philip K. Dick. Of course, getting out from the shadow of a Schwarzenegger hit is no small feat, but Wiseman was up for the challenge. He sat down with Metro at San Diego ComicCon to talk about his film's all-star cast — including his wife, Kate Beckinsale.

You've been at this production for a while.

It's been two and a half years.

Your wife and star, Kate Beckinsale, has said that living with you has proven that the director gets absolutely no time off.

She's very aware of it. It's one of the downsides. She sees how limited my time actually is, so I've often heard her say that from an actor's point of view, you want to be a little bit more selfish with your own questions and things, but if anything because we're married I find that she doesn't come to me as much as she generally would with another director because generally she feels for how incredibly overwhelmed I am with other things.

So, who would win in a fight between Jessica Biel and Kate Beckinsale?

It's a question that I can't ask. (laughs) To be really honest, if you knew these girls personally, they're very well-equipped with the action, just in terms of ability. And they're both quite vicious when they get into it. It was like having two stunt players on the movie, so we rarely brought a stunt person in for the fight stuff. I don't know who would win. I would really like to see it (laughs). If we just hold some kind of forum, I think it would do very well.

How do you decide which project will take over your life next?

I personally think you have to really, really fall in love with them. The best litmus for me is would I be upset if I passed on this and somebody else did it? I don't think you can go into any project that you feel a little bit iffy about because the minute that you do that - and I have done that before on a project - the amount that it asks of you is so great that you'll just start to break under how overwhelming it is. It's amazing how much adrenaline and passion can keep you awake, keep you going on a project.

story, the main character is more of an everyman, something Arnold Schwarzenegger couldn't really pull off.

That was really a focus of what I wanted to do with the character. At least for me, when I saw Total Recall in high school, I was going to go see an Arnold Schwarzeneger movie. I didn't know who Phillip K. Dick was. Arnold is already a superhuman-looking character from the beginning, so I was really wanting to create a character that felt a bit more accessible just as an everyman that turned into a super-spy so that you could have more of that change.

Of course, Colin Farrell is by no means schlubby, though. No, no. But he was very thin, though. He definitely got himself ripped and in shape for the super-spy aspect of the character. He was a great get because I needed somebody that was vulnerable and somebody that you connect with — but then when it became time to be that superhero kind of character and be tough and daring and all that, that you really bought that with the character, too. I think Colin really does occupy both of those qualities.

Kristen Stewart apologized for her "momentary indis-cretion" with director Rupert Sanders, but it seems there is more to the story than the one-day fling that Us Weekly crashed last week.

According to Leopold Ross — the brother of Sanders' wife, Liberty Ross — the affair began last fall during the filming of Snow White and the Huntsman, which Sanders directed and Stewart starred in.

made some "(Liberty) sacrifices for something she thought was worth it, now she knows, right?" Leopold tells UK newspaper The People. "Doubt it was worth Pattinson, apparently, suspects Kristen is holding back.

"Rob wants to have a

"Kristen has already betrayed his trust by cheating, so he can't be sure that she will tell him exactly what went on between her and Rupert. The director has a wife and family to save, so Rob feels like he has nothing left to lose and would be honest with him."

Cook over the line with Batman shooting quip

Dane Cook learned the hard way that a week is probably not enough time to wait before making light of a tragedy. The comedian has taken to Twitter to apologize for making a joke about the Aurora, Colo., movie theater shooting, during which 12 people were killed when a gunman opened fire at a Dark Knight Rises screening. "So I heard that the guy came into the theater about 25 minutes into the movie. And I don't know if you've seen the movie, but the movie is pretty much a piece of crap," Čook said during his set at L.A.'s Laugh Factory, according to Daily

"I know that if none of that would have happened, pretty sure that somebody in that theater, about 25 minutes in, realizing it was a piece of crap, was probably like, 'Ugh, f—ing shoot me.'" News of the joke caused an immediate uproar, prompting Cook to post to Twitter, "I am devastated by the recent tragedy in Colorado and did not mean to make light of what happened. I made a bad judgment call with my material last night and regret making a joke at such a sensitive time."

I could watch The Real Housewives Top 20 Reunion Moments everyday for the rest of my life.

Oh no, my child bullied...

Opinion ...another child with special needs, unknowingly. What would you do?

LINDSAY CROSS

My daughter is not a meanspirited child. I realize that every parent who has ever existed believes this and I don't care. My little girl is a sweet child.

That being said, she's also a kid and there are things that she doesn't understand or hasn't been exposed to yet. And the first time that she encounters something new, there's the possibility that her strong voice or curious nature can lead to difficult circumstances. This was one of those times.

Brenna has attended the same daycare since she was a month old. Her provider normally has about six or eight children at a time of varying ages. And one family that my daughter has grown up with has a daughter with special needs.

I'm not exactly sure what Sarah's specific medical diagnosis is (I've changed her name here). I know that she has physical limitations and wears a back brace.

She's in late elementary school but has the comprehension and speech of a toddler. Sarah is normally a sweet child who has a tendency to invade personal space and misunderstand her own strength, but generally just wants to make people happy.

really just wants to make people happy.

In the beginning, my daughter simply didn't understand that Sarah was different from other kids. When they were younger, it didn't matter.

Quote

"In the beginning, my daugher simply didn't understand that Sarah was different from other kids. This year, however, she became old enough to question the situation."

This year, however, my daughter finally became old enough to start questioning the situation

One day, while the kids were playing, my inquisitive girl started asking why Sarah wore a diaper, eventually saying: "You're too big for a diaper. Babies wear diapers, Sarah. You can't wear a diaper unless you're a baby."

Sarah's feelings were understandably hurt. She started crying. Brenna remained confused.

It's hard for children to understand the effect their words can have.

At home, we had a long talk about special needs and disabilities. But about a week later, she asked why Sarah "looked funny" when she ran. She asked why she played with baby toys.

My teacher mother advised me to explain that "everyone has special needs. Some are things that doctors and teachers can help us fix, and some things they can't."

I got ready for our next talk, armed with a new more explanatory strategy. I tried to keep my voice calm, so that I didn't sound angry or condemning. She got impatient with all of the explaining I was doing.

She suggested that we just draw her a card to say, "I'm sorry," and call it a day half-way through my planned lecture. I compromised by helping with the card but continuing the conversation as we coloured.

The good news is that my daughter hasn't had problems in a week. We'll have lots more talks about bullying with my daughter. It's a subject that no parent can afford to ignore.

But I have to admit, I never guessed that our first talk would cast my daughter as the aggressor.

Fifty Shades sex has some expecting

New report shows girls more likely to be bullied in school

Will little Sophia and Jacob morph into baby Christian and Anastasia about nine months from now?

While it's impossible to declare a Fifty Shades of Grey baby boomlet, some moms and moms-to-be attribute their pregnancies to sex inspired by the erotic trilogy that went mainstream early this year.

One night on vacation in Florida was all it took for Betsy Bailey, a labour and delivery nurse, no less, in suburban Chicago. She's expecting baby number six, conceived soon after reading the steamy bondage love story.

"It was like one night alone," she laughed. "We went out to dinner and, you know, a little wine, a little stone crab and a little Christian Grey."

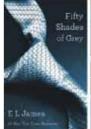

Bailey's No. 6 is due Christmas Day, her 42nd birthday. She and her husband always knew they wanted a big family, but they thought big would be four kids.

"We picked up our fifth in Mexico. He was a vacation baby as well," she joked. "We call him the worm at the bottom of the tequila bottle."

Christian and Ana aren't on her name list, though her great-grandmother's maiden name, Gray, had been a possibility — until now. "Now I don't think I could do it," Bailey said.

Brittany Woodard, 21, in Norfolk, Va., has a six-monthold son, Greyson, whose name has absolutely nothing to do with the books Woodard read while her military husband was away for four months.

New to the spicy genre, the stay-at-home mom wasn't trying for another baby so soon, but she was ready with "new ideas" in the boudoir department when her husband got home. She's due in February.

At BabyCenter.com, a large online community of moms and expectant moms, nearly 150 women have posted that their pregnancies are directly related to more baby-making activity inspired by the best-selling books that have sold 31 million copies in all formats.

metr⊕ WORK/EDUCATION

Good job. Males settling in to a female-fronted industry that pays well

Pink collar jobs, while not topearning careers, are typically well-paid jobs, many of which do not need long-term education which can get costly. The median annual wage of a nurse in May 2010 was $64,690 in the United States.

According to PayScale.com the U.S. average hourly rate of a nanny is $8 to $17 an hour, which is well above minimum wage for many cities.

When Mark Bala, an operating room nurse in the Philippines, was in high school and had to declare a major for college, he immediately put down nursing. His grandfather, who lived in the United States, told him that being a nurse was a good way to support a family. But, after Bala failed to get into the popular major, he chose a different career path and ended up as a research assistant for an environmental firm for a year and a half.

Then, Bala found out he had to undergo major surgery. A college friend who had graduated with his 2001 class who had returned to school to pursue nursing encouraged Bala to re-enroll after he recovered. His aunt also broached the idea because she noticed that nursing was become a popular career in the both in the United States and the Philippines.

"Our family wasn't that well to do," he explained. "It was love for the family. I just wanted to have a better future for my family."

Work culture. Are men discriminated against?

Just because there are more men taking pink collar jobs doesn't mean that both men haven't noticed that their gender hasn't played a role in how people treat them. The male nurse interviewed above, Jeffrey Peralta, who is a homosexual man, says he often feels dominated by the women in his

He said he doesn't speak up because he's often afraid of retaliation.

Mark Bala, an operating room nurse in the Philippines, stated that the public normally doesn't have a problem accepting the fact that he's a male nurse. He has noticed, however, that some doctors prefer female nurses over male nurses.

Doctor? No, I'm a 'murse'

Careers. Welcome to the world of the male nurse. More men are taking pink collar jobs stereotypically reserved for women

Jeffery Peralta is a nurse who works in pediatric care at the Children's Recovery Center of Northern California (CRC), as well a pediatric primary and urgent care nurse at the Santa Clara Valley Medica Center, East Valley Clinic near San Jose, Calif.

"There is a spectrum of reactions that I get when I tell people that I am a nurse, Peralta tells us.

"One of my favourites is, 'Why didn't you just become a doctor?' There are people who also look at nursing in a different light and respect my profession as an esteemed role within the medical model."

At one point, people might have questioned his career choice for a different reason: the fact that he's a 25-year-old man in a typically female profession.

But, he's actually joining a growing number of American men who are taking up pink collar jobs — careers typically dominated by women.

According to a recent New York Times' analysis of U.S. census data, one-third of all job growth for men between 2000 and 2010 occurred in careers that were more than 70 per cent female.

One of the most stereotypical pink collar jobs is nursing. Male nurses are often given the nickname 'murse,' but with slowly increasing numbers that may change.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that in 2011, 290,000 of nursing, psychiatric, and home health aides were men and 1,900,000 were women. Looking at the nursing field specifically, the Health Resources and Services Administration - which publishes data on nurses in the United States every four years — said 6.6 per cent of the nurses in the United States in 2008 were males.

When you take into account that there were just about 45,000 registered male nurses in the 1980s and about 168,000 registered male nurses as of 2008, it's a giant leap.

While the overall increase of men who are taking pink collar jobs has only been proven in the U.S., several other countries are seeing more men choosing certain pink collar occupations.

In the U.K., 52 per cent more men applied to teach Quoted primary school students and now make up 30 percent of the applicants, according to Training and Development Agency for Schools.

As for nursing, 13 per cent of the University of Calgary's fall 2011 nursing program was male, the highest number of men they've seen interested in the course.

According to the Canadian Nurses Association, male nurses have doubled in the last decade and now make up six per cent of the work

The Australian Institute of Health and Welfare also reported an increase of male nurses from 7.9 per cent of the workforce in 2005 to 9.6 percent of the workforce in 2009.

On Peralta's team at CRC, seven members of the group are men whereas the other 29 members are women.

Numbers are similar in his other job where he is one of the four men out of the 19-person team.

pool deck before their second dive — a moment Heymans said burst their bubble of focus.

They were noticeably out of sync on the board in Dive 2 a forward dive in pike position, normally an easy feat for the duo — and fell to fifth place.

"I think both of us, in our head it was like: 'What's going on, what's going on?'" Hey-mans said. "But after we were able to calm down and come back to the competition and we know it's never over until the last dive."

Heymans and Abel, 20-year-old from Laval, Que., battled back to win bronze with 316.80 points. Wu and Zi of China led from start to finish to take the gold with an overall score of 346.20. Americans Kelci Bryant and Abigail Johnston captured silver with 321.90.

Heymans, who is also competing in the individual threemetre springboard event in London, will decide her future following the Games.

She said she might dive one more year. It won't be an easy decision for a woman who has trained at least 20 hours a week since she was seven.

"Actually sport is my entire life, it's what I've been doing since I was six years old. I think I'm going to carry this baggage for the rest of my life," she said, meaning it in a good way.

Her parents encouraged her to try diving.

"At first I didn't want to try. I didn't even want to go to the pool because I loved gymnastics, so I didn't want to quit and I hate being wet, I hate being in the water and I'm always cold," she said.

Van Beilen bounced from 100m final in swim-off

Another day, another drama for Canada's swim team at the Olympic Games.

Tera Van Beilen of Oakville, Ont., made her Olympic debut in the 100-metre breaststroke Sunday, and had to compete in one more race than she'd expected.

The 19-year-old had a swimoff against Alia Atkinson of Jamaica late in the evening, when the Aquatic Centre stands had largely emptied, to determine who would claim the eighth spot in Monday's final.

The two women had identical times and finished tied for eighth in the semifinal, requiring a rare head-to-head almost two hours later to solve the deadlock. Atkinson prevailed, dropping Van Beilen to ninth and one spot out of the final in her third race of the day.

"It was mentally hard coming off a race and knowing you had to do it again," Van Beilen said. "I feel blessed for the opportunity to have swum again.

It wasn't how I would have liked it to turn out. I gave it everything I had."

It was the second strange turn of events for Canada in as many days. Ryan Cochrane thought he would race in the men's 400 freestyle final Saturday, but a disqualification of world and Olympic champion Park Tae-hwan in the heats was

"I tried to get my head in the right place. It was a hard turnaround."

Tera Van Beilen on Sunday's swim-off

That bumped the Victoria swimmer from the final eight and out of the running for a medal. Cochrane will get another chance in Saturday's 1,500-metre freestyle, which is a distance he won Olympic bronze in four years ago.

Canada emerged from the opening weekend of swim competition still looking for a medal. Their goal is three medals and swimmers in 13 to 15

Custio Clayton notched Canada's first Olympic boxing win in eight years on Sunday, earning a 12-8 decision over Mexico's Oscar Molina.

"I think I did amazing," said the Dartmouth, N.S., "All the hard work has Annie Martin of Sherbrooke, Que., and Marie-Andree Lessard of Ville LaSalle, Oue., lost their opening preliminary-round match 17-21, 21-14, 15-13 to Britain's Zara Dampney and Shauna Mullin in women's beach volleyball Sunday.

After struggling in the second set, Martin and Lessard appeared to have regained their first-set touch, gaining and 8-5 lead in the third. But the British pair scored six of the next seven points and didn't relinquish the lead

"It's unfortunate the match didn't go our way," Martin said. "It was a good match, we had our moments but we made more errors than usual."

On the winning point, Martin's block on a Dampney smash went wide, sending the 15,000 pro-British crowd into a Basketball. Durant helps erases slow start for Americans in tournament-opening win over France

Kevin Durant finished with 22 points as the United States powered home after a sluggish start in a 98-71 win over France on Sunday on the opening day of the men's Olympic basketball tournament.

The U.S. team, loaded with NBA stars and a heavy favourite to defend its title, strug-gled early and was leading by just one point at the end of the first quarter.

"That team is like a Gemini. They have two faces, a nightmare-nightmare."

French power forward Ronny Turial

A 30-15 second quarter was the beginning of the end for France, which is led by San Antonio Spurs guard Tony Parker and has five other NBA players, the most in any squad apart from the United States.

In the second half, the Americans produced enough alley-oop passes and dunks to draw oohs and aahs from the crowd and subdue the French.

"They're going to be very, very tough to beat," Parker said.

Parker, playing with goggles to protect a surgically repaired left eye, scored 10 as France fell to 0-5 in Olympic competition against the United States. Ali Traore led France with 12 points.

Kevin Love scored 14 points, Kobe Bryant scored 10 and Le-Bron James added eight assists for the U.S. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Loss to Honduras ends Spain's Olympic hopes early

Spain was eliminated from the men's Olympic soccer tournament Sunday after another 1-0 loss.

Honduras forward Jerry Bengtson scored the lone goal in the seventh minute, knocking a header past Spain goalkeeper David de Gea.

It was an intense match packed with heated aggression. Spain players picked up seven yellow cards and Honduras six.

"The team was tense from the beginning because they knew that they had to score to qualify for the next round," Spain's coach Luis Milla said. "And the early goal made it harder."

Spain's under-23 team has been under enormous pres-sure to follow in the footsteps of the senior side, which has won the 2010 World Cup and 2012 European Champion-

When asked if he thought the pressure affected the team, Milla said, "Yes, it's possible that the pressure was there, but they are players who play at the highest level. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Swimming. Aanel chases down American star Lochte in final leg to steal gold medal

French celebrated.

It was just like 2008 but with the roles reversed.

This time, it was France chasing down the United States — and Lochte, no less to win another riveting relay at the Olympics.

"We got our revenge,"
French swimmer Clement Lefert said.

With Phelps looking much stronger than he did the night before, the Americans built a commanding lead over the first three legs of the 4x100-metre freestyle relay Sunday and never really had to worry about the defending world champions from Australia

When Lochte dove into the water on the anchor leg, he was a half-body length ahead of the field and looking to add another gold to his dominating victory Saturday in the 400 individual medley.

Not so fast.

Or, should we say, not fast enough.

Yannick Agnel, playing the chaser role, sliced through the water and was right on Lochte's shoulder as they made the flip at the far end of the pool. With about 25 metres to go, they were stroke for stroke. But Lochte, who had already competed in 1,200 metres of racing over the first two days, simply didn't have enough left to hold off the towering, 20-year-old Frenchman, one of the sport's real rising

"I gave everything in the last 50 until he cracked," Agnel said. "In the last 10 metres, I saw that he was really cracking.

Agnel touched in three minutes, 9.93 seconds, having gone exactly one second faster than Lochte over the last two laps.

Lochte and the Americans dropped to silver in 3:10.38, while Australia — the favourite — didn't even get a medal. Russia took the bronze in 3:11.41, edging the team from Down Under

Phelps settled for his 17th career medal and completed his collection of Olympic colours, adding a silver to his 14 golds and two bronzes. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I was just really excited and I think I over-swam the first 50 and it hurt me for the last 50."

BY MICHAEL WIESENBERG

↑ Aries

March 21 - April 20

Take what you hear with a large pinch of salt today. Someone will almost certainly try to mislead you but they can only succeed if you let them. If in doubt, follow your instincts — they're not often wrong

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Today's Sun-Pluto link means vou will need to take care of something you should have taken care of a long time ago. You won't get a third bite of the cherry, so knuckle down and get it right.

∐ Gemini May 22 - June 21

The cosmic trends have been good to you in recent months but don't start thinking you can do as you please and get away with it. Money matters, especially, will need to be dealt with cautiously this week.

Gancer

June 22 - July 23

If there is something that is worrying you — and there undoubtedly is — you must share your fears with those you love and trust. You don't have to suffer in silence. You don't have to suffer at all.

9 Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Do you really believe in something, or did you copy a friend's idea because it sounded good at the time? If it's the latter today's Sun-Pluto link will force you to face up to its inconsistencies.

W Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You may be tempted to break the rules to get ahead of a rival but the planets warn that's not a good idea. Even if it works in the short-term you will lose out in the long-term. It's all about trust.

△ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

The grass may look greener on the other side of the fence but you should know by now that looks can be deceptive. Wherever you are at the moment is where you are supposed to be.

M Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

A belief you have never questioned before will begin to worry you today. Could it be that it's incorrect? Could it be you have been looking at it from the wrong angle? Yes it could, so look again.

🗷 Sagittarius Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

A relationship is now at a turning point and by the time Thursday's full moon comes around you will have made a fateful decision. Will it be the right one? It's right for you and that's what matters.

り Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Be nice to your rivals today. If nothing else it will confuse them and make them believe you have some dastardly plan up your sleeve. Confusion leads to mistakes: mistakes lead to opportunities.

→ Aquarius Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

The approaching full moon is making you more touchy than usual and if you are observant you will notice that some people seem to be steering clear of you.

H Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Your trust in someone has gone through the floor and you doubt you will ever get back to where you were before. Maybe you're right but time is always a healer and deep down you still have feelings for them.
